EU POLICY: PORT PACKAGE III ON HOLD

Strong indications emanating from Members of Parliament and other institutional sources confirm that the TRAN Committee will refrain from voting on possible amendment compromises, though on agenda of the meeting of this Committee on 17th and 18th March.

As a consequence, the European Commission's intention and hope to submit its legislative initiative to the Plenary of the present Parliament seems to have been overambitious.

The question remains as to how the next Parliament and European Commission will deal with this controversial third attempt to regulate ports and port services in Europe.
